From the Chair

For Master Gardeners, 2015 was once again a year of great accomplishment and community service. As you read through this annual report, you will see that the numbers tell the story. From the 46,756 hours of total service to the $12,629 in monetary donations, over 300 active Master Gardeners made a real difference in a wide variety of locations in the St. Louis metropolitan area. Master Gardeners also like to learn and have fun, and our continuing education classes, garden tour, social events, and winter book club all were wonderful opportunities to do that in 2015.

You have many reasons to wear the St. Louis Master Gardener name badge with pride. Thank you for all that you do for the community and for our organization, and happy gardening in 2016!

Diane Grubbs, MGAC Chairperson

Master Gardeners at work in the community

Covenant House Missouri Healing Garden Project

Each day Covenant House Missouri works to empower disconnected youth to design their own path from homelessness to opportunity. They are an open intake agency committed to providing help and hope to young people age 16-21. Through integrated programs focused on the complex needs of the population they serve, including mental health, education, employment, and life skills, they strive to be a place of home and direction for young people who are at risk.

Master Gardener, Anne Moore, took on the task of designing a Healing Garden for Covenant House Missouri located on North Kingshighway. Anne not only designed the Healing Garden, but also arranged for MPR Contracting to donate the construction of a pondless water feature. The St. Louis Master Gardeners donated $1,400 toward the materials needed for the water feature. Anne is currently working with Covenant House volunteer Pamela Keck to find funding sources for the project. Master Gardener Tina Short assisted with the project.

Memorial Garden in the Grove

"I recently designed a memorial garden for the St. Louis transsexual community and worked with them planning. The space was previously in turf grass with on plant selection, insta a small corner planted as a (neglected) butterfly garden. Butterflies are important symbol of transformation for the community so there was no question of replacing the butterfly garden. Instead I ordered a couple of hundred more native prairie grasses and forbs to fill out the existing plantings and tied it thematically to the rest of the design with new perennial borders. If my design works as planned, visitors will experience an uphill journey into an opening that symbolizes the personal journeys of trans folks through difficulty to oneness. You can see the garden in the Grove neighborhood at the corner of Hunt and Vandeventer."

South Technical High School Greenhouse

The South Technical High School Greenhouse was busy in 2015 with the planting, propagating, watering, and caring for the 497 different plant varieties of annuals, perennials, vegetables, succulents, herbs and aquatics that were housed in 2015. Thirty-one Master Gardeners volunteering over 3653 hours produced over 18,000 plants from seeds, cuttings, and plugs. At the end of the weekend sale, many varieties of plants were sold out. What happened to the leftover plants? They were donated to non-profit organizations and community gardens (see list below).

Where does the money go? The proceeds from the annual greenhouse sale are donated to worthy community gardens and projects around St. Louis city and county. It also provides funding for two $500 scholarships each year to South Technical High School students, for post-high school education in horticulture or culinary arts.

In 2015, unsold plants were donated to the following Community Organizations:

John Hensley presents our donation check to Forest ReLeaf

"I would like to thank the St. Louis Master Gardeners for the generous gift to Missourians for Monarchs. Your gift will enhance our ability to provide milkweed and nectar plant seeds and plugs to partners in order to further our mission to create and restore monarch and other pollinator habitat across Missouri. While we have hundreds of eager volunteers, availability of seeds and plants is fundamental to success. We sincerely appreciate the interest in this effort Master Gardeners have demonstrated."

Milkweeds for Monarchs – The St. Louis Butterfly Project Catherine Werner

An initiative of the City of St. Louis Office of Sustainability, it was launched in 2014 by Mayor Frances Slay. The City has planted many monarch gardens and has challenged communities to do the same. The success of Milkweeds for Monarchs has brought national attention to St. Louis. The website contains excellent information on monarch gardens. www.stlouis-mo.gov/monarchs

MN Strong – McCluer North High School Kelly York and Adam Bender

MN Strong is an organization started by teachers to bring the school community together. Teachers, staff, administration, students and parents have worked together and learned that great things can be accomplished when you work side by side. As Master Gardeners we were particularly focused on their lovely raised bed gardens.

International Institute of St. Louis – Global Farms Joel Walker

An amazing organization that helps new Americans get back to their farming roots by assisting them in acclimating to farming in Missouri while providing access to growing healthy nutritional food and the opportunity for agricultural career possibilities. There are two outstanding urban farm sites in St. Louis city.

Grow Glendale Gorgeous Julie Grimm

A volunteer based community organization dedicated to beautify the community with gardens, containers, landscapes, and environmental education. This organization is an example of what can take place in a short time when you have a strong group of dedicated volunteers with a clear common goal.

Sixty new Master Gardeners are certified in 2015 . . .

The St. Louis Master Gardener Volunteer Training Program is an annual training conducted in partnership between the Missouri Botanical Garden (MBG) and University of Missouri Extension. In 2015, 62 trainees completed the 18-week program, and 60 were certified as St. Louis Master Gardeners. The trainees were from all walks of life and they volunteered an amazing 5,375 hours in 2015. Evening trainee, Charlie McIntosh, logged 638 hours at the International Institute Urban Farm for the highest single total.

As part of the training, students had the opportunity to hear lectures from experts in their field including University of Missouri Extension Staff, Missouri Botanical Garden Staff, and specialists in our community who own businesses or are horticultural consultants. Kemper Center's Glenn Kopp went above and beyond when he made plants talk during his Botany lecture. There were 2 new instructors in 2015, Dale Burkhart with an extensive greenhouse background and currently a greenhouse researcher at the Danforth Plant Center taught the Propagation class. Scott Woodbury from Shaw Nature Reserve taught the Natives class.

Many thanks to the volunteer classroom assistants: Linda Anderson, Valerie Donahue, and Karen Wolfe-Kerker.

& Master Gardener Advanced Certification returns!

The Advanced Master Gardener Certification was reintroduced in 2015 to encourage St. Louis Master Gardeners to continue their pursuit of knowledge. To receive Advanced Certification active Master Gardeners must obtain 24 education credits within 3 years of completing their Advanced Certification application. Credit is earned by attending horticulture classes that are a minimum of 2 hours in length and at a preapproved site that includes the Missouri Botanical Garden and St. Louis Community College. 32 Master Gardeners completed an application to obtain Advanced Certification in 2015. Cynthia Rill, was the first to receive Advanced Certification, followed by

Paula Miceli.
Congratulations!

Continuing Education Classes for 2015

Master Gardeners are life-long learners! In order to keep up with the latest and greatest information related to a wide variety of gardening topics, the Master Gardener Program in St. Louis offers a monthly continuing education class – sometimes it might be a lecture, sometimes a tour, and other times it might be a hands-on demonstration. We plan these classes for different days of the week so as to accommodate the schedules of many Master Gardeners. Any ideas for future continuing education topics are always welcomed!

Speakers Bureau 2015— On a Roll!

The Speakers Bureau's 23 volunteers out did themselves in 2015, giving a total of 116 talks to a variety of groups in the Greater St. Louis metropolitan area. The number of talks has been increasing over the past three years, and can be attributed to the quality of the programs and the enthusiastic hard work by the speakers. Speakers do their own research, generate the forms needed, create useful handouts and PowerPoint presentations, tote equipment— and then deliver unique, interesting, and useful programs!

The programs that caught the most attention in 2015 were:

Terry Milne's Downsize Your Garden
John Hensley's Plants of the Bible
Betsy Alexander's Chocolate
Carol Gravens' Plants that Changed the

Cor

The Speakers Bureau currently lists 47 programs available for scheduling. Super-speaker Carol Gravens, Master Gardener of the Year for 2013, has 10 different topics she is willing to present!

2015 Master Gardener of the Year: Gary Hartmann

This year's Master Gardener of The Year, Gary Hartman, is one of the most prolific volunteers in our organization. He has volunteered nearly 3500 hours, averaging about 500 hours per year. He has served on the Master Gardener Advisory Committee, holding the office of Secretary for 3 years. Gary regularly volunteers at not one, but two botanical gardens – The Missouri Botanical Garden and Powell Gardens near Kansas City.

Gary's specialty is water plants and he is the primary water lily volunteer at Powell Gardens and he is the primary volunteer in all the ponds at the Missouri Botanical Garden. Gary is solely responsible for

Another Successful Master Gardener Garden Tour

The June rainy weather forced postponement of the original tour date, and the new date, June 23rd, started off with morning showers. But our intrepid Master Gardeners persevered, arriving with umbrellas and raingear, which were quickly shed as the sun reappeared. Well over 100 Master Gardeners enjoyed their visit to the homes of Master Gardeners Jack Brier, Susan Pang, Betty Struckhoff, Judie Keane, and Sue Chaires, who volunteered their gardens for the tour. The final stop of the tour was the Schlafly Bottleworks, with a tour of the produce garden, tended by MG Brian DeSmet, followed by a social with drinks and appetizers—a perfect way to end the day!

Master Gardener Holiday Social & Boutique

The first Master Gardener Holiday Social & Boutique was held on the evening of Wednesday, November 18th at the Kemper Center. There were 13 local artisans, many who were Master Gardeners, offering items for sale. The Master Gardeners in attendance had a great time sampling a variety of appetizer and sweets as they shopped for everything from jewelry to hammered copper spoons to mini cheesecakes. A 2016 Holiday Social & Boutique is being planned.

Master Gardener Winter Book Group

What do gardeners do during the winter, besides dreaming of the garden season to come? This year they had the opportunity to join the Winter Book Group, which began meeting on October 11th. Interested MGs will continue to meet one Sunday per month through March of 2016. Books selected focus on botany, horticulture, and other gardening topics of interest to members.

welcomed new Master Gardeners as the 2015 Training Class received their badges, and applauded our 2015 Community Service Award Winners and this Year's MG of the Year, Gary Hartmann. Many thanks to Julie Kohlberg, Stephanie Sigala,

Maxine Stone, Donna Webster and Leon Zickrick, Membership Committee members who organized this year's event.

Cultivating Young Cooks

Master Gardener, Margaret Grant, organized an event for teachers and parents that would connect them with the organizations that provide resources for healthy home cooking, beekeeping, vermiculture, goat milking, school garden grants, raised beds, hydroponics, and much more. Over 750 adults and children attended this event held at the Kemper Center, and hosted in part by the American Culinary Federation's Chef & Child Foundation. Mary Denny and her students from Forest Park CC Culinary Arts School and Chris Dessens, Director of the Culinary Program at Hickey Culinary Institute along with instructor, Amy Freeze, and several of their students, prepared and handed out samples of healthy dishes that included humus, smoothies and wild rice bread pudding and lots more. Tony's Executive Pastry Chef Helen Fletcher prepared several quick breads for tasting, and Chef Mathew Unger from Matthew's Kitchen prepared a delicious, simple, healthy tomato sauce. Visitors could also make mozzarella cheese, sample fresh goat cheese, and even milk a goat. If all that was not enough, visitors watched Brian Menzel, Bella Vino Wine Bar, use a chainsaw to carve an enormous block of into a masterpiece. The event was the largest to date for the American Culinary Federation's Chef & Child Foundation.
